

The Business Resilience Health Check

How sure are you about the business environment?

There is now an unprecedented focus on risk management and business resilience in the wake of the global financial crisis:

All the signs are that the next few years will be tougher still for business with higher taxes, savage cuts in public provision and the winding down of financial stimuli.

Last year showed that businesses found it difficult to grow meaningfully in depressed and uncertain markets, which in turn created much higher demands on businesses in terms of profitability, cash generation, planning, controls, and overall management.

The resultant pressure on cash is a major risk to business survival.

Leema Risk Management (LRM) offers a wealth of experience as practitioners and implementers in risk management.

Offering practical solutions to practical problems, with an emphasis on prevention not cure, the 'Business Resilience Health Check®' is designed to drill down into areas as diverse as legal and regulatory risk, performance management, operational, managerial, financial and environmental risk, business continuity, crisis management capabilities, physical & information security and systems disaster recovery processes – All critical activities to any business seeking to be successful in the 'new world'

In today's climate, demonstrating to your bankers, stakeholders, supply chain and customers that you have assessed and mitigated such risks whilst bearing down on overheads and demonstrating strong financial management can provide positive bottom line savings or critical growth opportunities.

Rapid growth & easy money are history, the maxim that turnover is vanity, profit is sanity, cash is king never truer, sharper management of risk and cash along with robust business processes is upon us all!

Take a look at the model and a the outcomes from a real life case study based on one of our clients experience of working with us using the health check to identify risks around their business.
